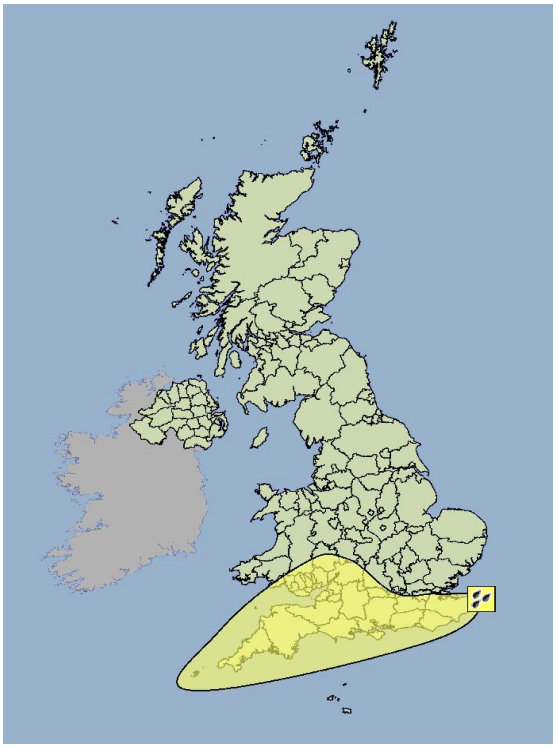
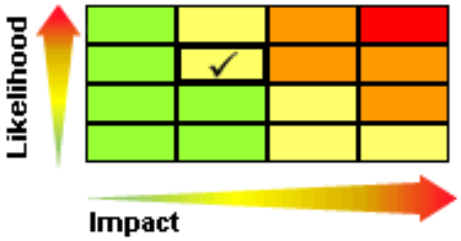
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
The first area of heavy rain is moving east across southeast England, but another spell of heavy rain with a risk of thunder has moved into South Wales and will progress further east into southwest England and the West Country over the next couple of hours, and then eastwards across other southern parts of England. Although not everywhere in the warning area will see heavy rain, a few places could receive 15-20 mm of rain within an hour and as much as 30 mm in 3 hours.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 18:30 on Sat, 03rd Sep 2016 until 23:00 on Sat, 03rd Sep 2016

Further heavy rain is expected during the evening, with a second band now affecting South Wales and moving eastwards, thus the extension of the warning into this area.

Please be aware of the risk of localised surface water flooding and disruption to transport, particularly where the heavy rain occurs over urban areas.
